NAI Utah hires new business director -- The Salt Lake City office of NAI Utah Commercial Real Estate named Lloyd E. Allen its new business director.

He will assist with NAI Utah's business plans and keeping its sales agents up-to-date with commercial real estate laws.

Allen, who was previously a transaction and litigation attorney with Hirschi Christensen PLLC, focused on real estate transactions for the past 10 years. Allen also served as corporate counsel for IBM for more than six years in Salt Lake City and San Francisco, as well as in their corporate headquarters in New York. His business and corporate experience included the organization and management of legal entities, stock and asset acquisitions, various real estate transactions and secured transactions.

He currently teaches business and international law as an adjunct instructor at the University of Utah.

Business group names new PR manager -- The National Association of Certified Valuation Analysts named Jeffrey Chappell its senior public relations manager.

Chappell, who has more than 10 years of public relations and event management experience, will provide services to the group, which supports professional business valuation, litigation consulting, fraud deterrence and detection..

Chappell had served as a public relations associate with Snapp Norris Group PR in Salt Lake City and also led several accounts for Broadcast International, Willowstick Technologies and Amp Resources. He also provided public relations services for the American Red Cross, Pebble Creek Ski Area, and Comprehensive Mental Health.

Award

Orem student honored -- Prudential Financial Inc. honored two Utah students, including one in Orem, with its Prudential Spirit of Community awards for their volunteer work.

Lauren Hillman of Orem and Bradley Jencks of South Jordan, along with 100 other top high school and middle-level youth volunteers nationwide each received $1,000 awards at Prudential's 11th annual award ceremony and gala dinner reception, held at the Smithsonian's National Museum of Natural History.

Hillman, an eighth-grader at Lakeridge Junior High School in Orem, started a community service club at her school that has conducted a wide range of projects to benefit the elderly, hurricane victims, Mexican orphans, African refugees and others.

Jencks, a ninth-grader at South Jordan Middle School, honored and preserved the memory of those buried in an old ghost-town cemetery by cleaning and restoring headstones, collecting information about more than 1,400 individual graves, and making the information available to the public through books and Web sites.
