

Training Magazine

Center names new CEO

May 28, 2006

 news digest

Center names new CEO

The Center for Economic and Industry Research has named Gary E. Jones as chief executive officer.

Jones', says company representatives, is in the process of re-evaluate all business strategies and revamping the company's Web site.

Jones, who had been in retirement, is an expert in business valuation. During his 35-year career, Jones served as a partner with Petrinovich, Pugh & Jones, a CPA firm in the San Francisco Bay Area. He founded million-dollar valuation consulting firm ValueNomics, which was purchased last year by Armanino McKenna. Jones wrote The Business of Business Valuation, which was published by McGraw-Hill in 1998.

The Center for Economic and Industry Research, (formerly known as CEIR) is a full-service data transmission and business research firm serving the valuation, financial forensics consulting and other relevant communities.

SAVE | EMAIL | PRINT | MOST POPULAR | RSS  REPRINTS

Copyright 2006 Training Mag