A Blogging Pause

I haven't stopped blogging, but I have taken a few days off recently.

I spoke last Thursday at the NACVA 13th Annual Consultants' Conference in San Francisco last week. I spoke on the topic of Buy-Sell Agreements \(link to my overheads\), which is an important topic for business owners and their advisers.

I have been speaking for many years. I have never received as many favorable comments about a topic while at a conference nor as many favorable comments about the presentation itself. No wonder I like speaking at NACVA conferences!

My wife accompanied me and we took a couple of days to do the tourist thing, arriving back in Memphis this evening. We had a great time riding street cars, seeing aquariums, watching whales do their thing, dining out, spending time with friends, and meeting new friends.

I'll ease back into more substantive blogging as I'm able.
